

CV JUAN CARLOS TORRE.

Graduated in Sociology at the Universidad de Buenos Aires received his PHD from the Ecole Des Hautes Etudes en Sciences Sociales (Paris). Currently he is professor at the Universidad T. Di Tella and Editor of Desarrollo Económico, a journal of social sciences published in Buenos Aires. He has taught and worked in several universities in Europe and Latin America , was visiting scholar at Institute for Advanced Studies (Princeton) and Guggenheim Fellow. Two are his main areas of interest: history and political science. He has several books and articles on Argentine political and social history, in particular, on the peronist movement ; also he has written on democratic transitions, the problems of party representation and the political economy of reforms in Argentina and Latin America.